

The Ultimate Motivator

[On-screen description: Doctor Shannon E. Boye Professor and Chief-Division of Cellular and Molecular Therapy speaks to the camera. The scenes cut between Doctor Boye, and a young boy exploring a vibrant and beautiful forest.]

DR. BOYE: What motivates me, I think the most to do my job is interacting with other moms that have young children that are suffering from these debilitating vision robbing conditions. I have children myself. I know what it feels like to want everything for your child. You want them to thrive. It's hearing from the moms and dads of those, those little babies that have this condition that is, I think, the ultimate motivator for me.

[Text on-screen reads: Experience the impact of vision research. NIH.GOV]